The Beatles, My personal fairy-tale story New release: Blažo Guzina - The Beatles, My personal fairy-tale story, Or should I say How I got rid of communism With a little help from the Fab Four Available on: The Beatles, My personal fairy-tale story: Or should I say How I got rid of communism With a little help from the Fab Four: Guzina, Blažo: 9798312266450: Amazon.com: Books What is the common denominator in the biographies of the Beatles, Mozart, Bob Dylan, Bill Gates, Steve Jobs, Robert De Niro, Novak Đoković, Brigitte Bardot, Salvador Dali and Gérard Depardieu? What is common in social events like the 1968 protests in Paris, beatlemania in the Swinging London, the Summer of Love in San Francisco, the rock 'n' roll scene in Belgrade as well as in the hippie movement in Niš, in south-eastern Serbia? The answers are provided by this unique, interesting and exciting personal story. A story that follows a period of 70 years, from the birth of John Lennon to the day the book was written, and makes us discover the greatest musical achievements since the emergence of jazz, blues and rock 'n' roll. A story written by a lifelong lover of the Beatles' music and a connoisseur of their work. This is a first-person account, starting with the author's life-changing event when he first heard their music on the legendary Radio Luxembourg as a 13-year-old boy in the former communist Yugoslavia. The author is a retired Serbian engineer, professor and writer whose works have been published or translated into English, French, Chinese, Spanish, Portuguese and Italian. www.BlazoGuzina.yolasite.com
